Initial Policy Plan for Global Accreditation Council (RSIN 8625 87 761)

The Purpose of GAC

The purpose of the Global Accreditation Council is:

- to stimulate the quality and growth of education aimed at sustainability and regeneration;
- to make connections between organizations engaged in transformational learning;
- to provide opportunities for individuals to obtain credits from member organizations for formal qualifications

The Activities of GAC

The Global Accreditation Council works to achieve this goal by:

- Accrediting organizations with learning programs related to sustainability, transformation and regeneration, both for impact and for quality;
- Connecting member organizations with each other through an online social platform;
- Connecting individual learners with organizations that offer values-aligned learning opportunities;
- Offering a credit system through which individuals can accrue credits towards a qualification through GAC member organizations

Financing the GAC

The Global Accreditation Council is a not-for-profit member organization. Board members of the organisation are not paid for their work for GAC.

GAC raises funds through:

- Donations by values-aligned individuals and organizations
- Membership fees
- Subscription services for individual learners to an all-you-can-learn course offering and a global skills passport

GAC's main expenses include:

- Staff
- Office rental
- Licences for third-party quality scorecards and learning software
- Affiliate fees to membership organizations on subscription sales
